Dean's Welcome

Today, as we look ahead to Commencement Exercises, we celebrate the achievements of our graduating students and distinguished faculty.

From CNC mills and MakerBots to biolabs and robots, technology has given designers and artists powerful new tools to shape the environment and our experiences. But one condition for success has remained unchanged since I was a student at PennDesign, and indeed since the School was founded: community.

The fellowships and awards given out today offer abundant evidence of this fact. Named in honor of alumni, past or current faculty members, they remind us of the generosity and rigor that are the lifeblood of our School. Among my core commitments as dean is to nurture excellence across the School, so I'm extremely grateful to all the donors who have made it possible for us to come together today.

Congratulations, one and all!

Frederick Steiner (MRP'77, MA'86, PhD'86)

Dean and Paley Professor

Dean Frederick Steiner

Frederick Steiner is Dean and Paley Professor at the University of Pennsylvania School of Design (PennDesign). Most recently, he served for 15 years as Dean of the School of Architecture and Henry M. Rockwell Chair in Architecture at The University of Texas at Austin. He previously taught at Penn and the following institutions: Arizona State University, Washington State University, and the University of Colorado at Denver. He was a visiting professor of landscape architecture at Tsinghua University in Beijing, China. Dean Steiner was a Fulbright-Hays scholar at Wageningen University, The Netherlands and a Rome Prize Fellow in Historic Preservation at the American Academy in Rome. During 2013-2014, he was the William A. Bernoudy Architect in Residence at the American Academy in Rome. He is a Fellow of both the American Society of Landscape Architects and the Council of Educators in Landscape Architecture, and a Scholar at the Penn Institute for Urban Research. Dean Steiner helped establish the Sustainable SITES Initiative, the first program of its kind to offer a systematic, comprehensive rating system designed to define sustainable land development and management, and holds the SITES Professional (SITES AP) credential.

Dean Steiner was a presidential appointee to the national board of the American Institute of Architects and is on the Urban Committee of the National Park System Advisory Board. Previously, he served as president of the Hill Country Conservancy (an Austin land trust) as well as in various capacities on the boards of Envision Central Texas and the Landscape Architecture Foundation. He worked on the Austin Comprehensive Plan (Imagine Austin) and on the campus plan for The University of Texas at Austin.

Dean Steiner earned a Master of Community Planning and a B.S. in Design from the University of Cincinnati, and his Ph.D. and M.A. in city and regional planning and a Master of Regional Planning from PennDesign. Dean Steiner also received an honorary M.Phil. in Human Ecology from the College of the Atlantic.

Awards Speaker: Marion Weiss

Marion Weiss, FAIA, is the co-founder of WEISS/MANFREDI Architecture/Landscape/Urbanism, a multidisciplinary design practice based in New York City, and the Graham Chair Professor of Architecture at the University of Pennsylvania School of Design. The firm's award-winning projects include the Olympic Sculpture Park, the Women's Memorial at Arlington National Cemetery, Brooklyn Botanic Garden's Visitor Center, Barnard's Diana Center, and Penn's Singh Center for Nanotechnology. Current projects include the U.S. Embassy in New Delhi and a research and development hub for Cornell Tech's groundbreaking new campus on Roosevelt Island in New York City. Weiss has also taught design studios at Harvard University, Cornell University, and was the Eero Saarinen Visiting Professor at Yale University.

She has been honored with the Academy Award for Architecture from the American Academy of Arts and Letters, the Architectural League's Emerging Voices Award, Harvard's International VR Green Urban Design Award, the New York AIA Gold Medal of Honor, and her work has been exhibited at the Museum of Modern Art, the Venice Architecture Biennale, the Louvre, and the Guggenheim Museum. Weiss received her Master of Architecture at Yale University. She is a fellow of the AIA and a National Academy inductee.

Historic Preservation Program

The Charles E. Peterson Award

Charles E. Peterson was a towering figure in the development of historic preservation as a profession in this country. He was an architect, scholar of historic building technology, creator of the Historic American Building Survey and long-time Philadelphia resident. The Peterson Award is given in his memory by The Carpenters' Company of the City and County of Philadelphia to outstanding students in the Graduate Program in Historic Preservation who have distinguished themselves by specialized study of historic building technology.
