

Aaron Wunsch

Aaron Wunsch currently teaches three core courses in Penn's Preservation Program: Documentation, Site Analysis, and American Architecture. His seminars, generally taught in the spring, have focused on broad aspects of the American cultural landscape, from commercial architecture, to cemeteries and suburbs, to cartography and the idea of landscape itself. His publications and papers have addressed such diverse topics as the 'rural' cemetery movement in Philadelphia, the formation of Charlottesville, Virginia's, park system, and the architecture of early electric utilities. His forthcoming book, Palazzos of Power, will be published by Princeton Architectural Press this fall.
