DEAN'S WELCOME

Today, as we look ahead to Commencement Exercises, we celebrate the achievements of our graduating students and distinguished faculty.

From CNC routers and 3D printers to desktop bio labs and robots, technology has given designers and artists powerful new tools to shape environments and experiences. But one indispensable tool has remained unchanged since I was a student at PennDesign, and indeed since the School was founded: community.

The fellowships and awards given out today offer abundant evidence of this fact. Named in honor of alumni, past or current faculty members, they remind us of the generosity and rigor that are the lifeblood of our School. Among my core commitments as dean is to nurture excellence across the School, so I'm extremely grateful to all the donors who have made it possible for us to come together today.

Congratulations, one and all!

COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER: BILLIE FAIRCLOTH, AIA, LEED AP BD+C

Billie Faircloth is a partner at KieranTimberlake, an award-winning architecture firm recognized for its environmental ethos, research expertise, and innovative design and planning. As the firm’s research director, she leads a transdisciplinary group of professionals that leverage research, design, and problem-solving processes from fields as diverse as environmental management, chemical physics, materials science, and architecture. Within this group, Billie fosters collaboration between disciplines, trades, academics, and industries in order to define a relevant problem-solving boundary for the built environment. In her professional and academic research, she is constantly pursuing an answer to the question: “Why do we build the way that we do?”

Billie has published and lectured internationally on themes including research methods for a transdisciplinary and trans-scalar design practices; the production of new knowledge on materials, climate, and thermodynamic phenomena through the design of novel methods, tools, and workflows; and the history of plastics in architecture to demonstrate how architecture’s “posture” towards transdisciplinary practices and new knowledge has changed over time.

Her articles have been published by the Journal of Architectural Education, Princeton Architectural Press, Royal Danish Academy of Fine Arts, and ACADIA. She is the author of Plastics Now: On Architecture’s Relationship to a Continuously Emerging Material (Routledge, 2015) and the recipient of Architectural Record’s 2017 Women in Architecture Innovator Award.

Prior to joining KieranTimberlake, Billie was an assistant professor at the University of Texas at Austin School of Architecture, where she instructed research studios exploring applications for conventional and emerging material technologies and conducted seminars on emerging construction and fabrication technologies. She has taught at the University of Pennsylvania School of Design and Harvard University, and has served as Portman Visiting Critic at Georgia Institute of Technology and VELUX Visiting Professor at the Royal Danish Academy of Fine Arts.
